WORK AHEAD FOR DIXIE BOOSTERS

Resolution of Highway Commission
Calls For Data on all Routes
Under Consideration.

THIS WAY HAS GOOD CHANCE

Carl G. Fisher May Vote For Cincinnati Route Because of Bad
Road Near Sellersburg.

A few automobiles have been promised for the Dixie highway booster trip to Brookville Friday, but not enough have been arranged for to make a good showing for Rushville and it is urged by persons interested in the project that they get their friends to lay their plans to drive to the Franklin county seat. Aside from the real purpose of the trip, it will furnish an excellent pleasure ride.

No further word has been received from Brookville concerning the meeting, but Brookville's immemorial public spiritedness assures a good crowd. It is declared that Rushville should show that it is interested and that it would like to see a project of the size of the Dixie highway movement touch Rushville.

According to reports from Seymour the Indianapolis-to-Louisville route does not have as good a show as it was first thought, because of an objection of Carl G. Fisher's, one of the two Dixie highway commissioners from this state, to a stretch of road forty miles long in southern Indiana between Crothersville and Sellersburg.

W. S. Gilbreath secretary of the Hoosier Motor Club of Indianapolis, who is one of the leading advocates of the highway addressed a mass meeting of citizens at Seymour. Mr. Gilbreath told how he and Mr. Fisher had twice covered the route between Indianapolis and New Albany and had found the forty miles of roads almost impassable. He censured the people for having permitted a traction company to make the highway their right-of-way, thus crowding users into the ditch.

"I am authorized by Mr. Fisher to say to you," Mr. Gilbreath said "that unless there is some way to awaken the people in that district between Crothersville and Sellersburg to the situation, he will be compelled, for safety's sake, to vote for the Cincinnati route of the Dixie highway. It seems incredible to him that a county or township would permit a traction company to impudently preempt its highway, such as has been done in southern Indiana."

It develops that there is a lot of work ahead for the cities which seek

NO CHANCE FOR EARLY BIRD

The stern arm of the law this morning unwittingly spoiled a romance, it is believed, when Policeman Arthur Yahey drove from back of the house of a neighbor of his a young swain who was bent on doing a Romeo stunt, but availed himself of the early rays of a spring sun rather than the love-making

ENGINE LOST ITS WHISTLE.

The engine drawing the Big four southbound passenger train due here at 8:03 a. m. lost its whistle this morning at Emporia, just this side of Anderson, causing the train to be delayed two hours. A new engine had to be procured to take the train on its regular run. It was explained by trainmen that when the whistle came off, all of the steam escaped and it was impossible for the engine to run.

RED MEN SEE DRILLS AND HEAR SPEECHES

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of the Founding of Lodge is Duly Observed at Wigwam Here.

P. J. LYNCH MAKES ADDRESS

Members of the Red Men's lodge and the daughters of Pocahontas heard appropriate speeches and witnessed drills last night at the local wigwam in commemoration of the founding of the Red Men's lodge twenty-five years ago. The large assembly hall in the wigwam was packed with people. After the program, refreshments were served in the dining room.

The meeting was opened with a prayer by the Rev. C. M. Yocum, pastor of the Main Street Christian church. Will Felts presided and the opening address was made by O. C. Norris, past great sachem of Indiana. Speeches were made by Chauncey W. Duncan of this city and P. J. Lynch of Newcastle, both of which were applauded.

The drills were the climax of the evening. Each team had a surprise in store. Members of the teams of Mahoning council and Lurline council, D. of P., which gave the first and second degrees, were dressed in white with their insigna on, and the drill team of Tanpah tribe No. 102, which gave the third degree, appeared in full dress uniform.

HELPED THE SHERIFF.

Newton Casey, Eddie Wolter, Frank Pittsford and Gordon Bennett, prisoners at the county jail, were given a vacation this afternoon by Sheriff Cavitt when they aided in placing screens in the windows at the jail. The men apparently enjoyed the brief stay out of doors.

INITIATORY DEGREE.

Franklin Lodge, No. 35 will have work in the initiatory degree on 4 candidates. A large attendance is desired.

PRAISES WATSON LABOR EXPONENT

Vincennes Commercial Says, in Editorial, That he is Second Only to McKinley

IS A LEADER OF ABILITY

When all Leaders Ran to Bushes in 1912, He Canvassed Ranks of Enemy Inviting Them to Debate

Criticism for the Cincinnati Enquirer and deep tribute to James E. Watson of this city as a true exponent of labor, second only to McKinley, a leader and debater of exceptional ability, is contained in an editorial from the Vincennes Commercial as follows:

The Indianapolis correspondent of the Enquirer the other day in what we call a subnormal editorial criticism, suggested that it was not known positively what Mr. Jas. E. Watson was going to do, and declared that Watson's friends were up in the air because of labor's antagonism to him. The article further criticized Mr. Watson for making public addresses to business men's clubs and manufacturers. This sort of political sham has gone about far enough. The Enquirer ought to have better sense than to print such rot. Mr. Watson is Indiana's leading public speaker. As an orator he has a national reputation. As the statesman who is posted on all public questions and the foremost advocate of the tariff proposition in this country, his services are sought everywhere by club and Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers Associations, and he has invitations without end to address business men upon topics about which they desire information. Mr. Watson has never been, and is not now an opponent of labor. On the contrary, he is the champion of labor's rights in this country. Especially so, because he is the leading advocate of the tariff propaganda, and in round terms has defined his position on that question. The intelligent and thinking element of the labor party understands this proposition pretty well. But there are some demagogues perhaps among the leaders, who oppose Mr. Watson merely to attract attention to themselves and work out some underlying motive. There is no man in the country who has worked more assiduously for the uplift and upbuilding of the true conditions in this country that will advance the employment of labor. He has fought the free trade party with great vehemence and in fighting the free trade party he has become the leading exponent of labor's cause in this country.

What is the use of any more shams such as the fraudulent, trumped-up attacks upon Watson made by certain labor exponents against him in 1908. The Enquirer correspondent knows these facts. There is no room for criticism whatever of Mr. Watson on that account. Next to McKinley, Watson is the leading exponent of labor protection in this country through the tariff. His argument is to "Open the Mills," and when the mills are once opened labor can take care of itself. Labor organizations know that too well, and we think it is due time, right now, for the labor organizations to squelch just such talk as Tucker reports or the Enquirer. It is time for co-operation, and for building up instead of breaking down. We need men of the great debating ability of Mr. James E. Watson to lead the country in this sort of propaganda.

Some way the idle statesmen who loaf around the Columbia Club at Indianapolis, are for everybody on

TWO SCHOOLS TO HOLD EXERCISES

Commencements of Anderson and Posey Township High Schools
Will Take Place Tonight

ONE AT MOSCOW LAST NIGHT

Annual Banquet of Milroy High School Alumni Association is in Nature of Home-Coming

The Milroy commencement will be held tonight marking the last of a week's festivities in connection with the close of school. The commencement address will be delivered by George R. Grose, president of the DePauw University. The diplomas will be presented by W. E. Wagoner, superintendent of the Milroy schools. Miss Leona Thomas is on the program for a violin solo and Wagoner's orchestra will play.

This year's class is composed of thirteen members as follows: The Misses Emily Dove Morgan, Clara Mable Riggs, Nellie Catherine Myers Agnes V. Stewart, and Elmer F. Jones, Leland R. Harrison, Dolph W. Crane, Richard L. Power, Carlos H. Mansfield, Cliff B. Staples, Clarence L. Scull, Willard N. White and Willie L. Robeson.

The Milroy Alumni Association held their annual banquet last evening in the auditorium of the school building there. This gathering is an annual affair and was attended as usual by almost the entire body of the alumni. The event is always in the nature of a home-coming for many living away from Rush county and Milroy. The first part of the evening was spent by the members in greeting each other and going over the days gone by. A five course banquet was served in the basement.

The election of officers for next year closed the events of the evening. The new officers of the association are as follows: Lyle Power, president; Ray Shelby, vice-president; Miss Claudine Ballard, secretary; Donald Bottorff, treasurer and Mrs. James McKee, historian.

After the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. H. F. Phillippi, the toast master, C. C. Richey aptly introduced various members of the association, who made impromptu talks. The regular program was followed and talks were made by Prof. Wagoner, Mrs. Fred Shelhorn, Miss Florence Elstun, Mrs. Everett Bottorff and Lyle Power. The banquet ended by all singing "Auld Lang Sang."

The Arlington high school commencement will also be held tonight. This is the only conflict in high school commencement dates in the county. The class address will be delivered by the Rev. C. W. Whitman and the musical numbers on the program will be furnished by the Downey orchestra. The exercises will open with prayer by the Rev. D. L. Milligan and the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. T. J. Anthony. Diplomas will be presented by the county superintendent to Clara Sunman, Elizabeth Nelson, Nellie Woods, Beatrice Bagley and Mary Woods.

The Orange township high school commencement was held at the Moscow Christian church last night. In the absence of the Rev. Harry G. Hill, of Indianapolis, who is ill, the Rev. Mr. Shouse of Greencastle spoke to the class on the subject, "The Humor and Philosophy of Life." The address was replete with sound advice that ascended above the trit sayings, and stringent humor. Wagoner's orchestra played in fine fashion and was liberally applauded. Diplomas were given to Miss Helena Raynes and Miss Ina Richey.

PILE OF SHINGLES SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Sidney Warth Falls From Top of House Today and May be Internally Injured.

Sidney Warth, 1023 North Perkins street, was seriously injured this morning in a fall from the roof of a house in North Sexton street. Warth was helping shingle a house owned by Mrs. Owen Kincaid, and in some manner lost his balance and fell a distance of fifteen feet to the ground. But for a pile of shingles on which he fell, Warth probably would have been killed.

He was badly cut and bruised and the attending physician states that complications may yet develop of a critical nature. Warth was rendered unconscious and for a time it was thought he would die. Warth may be injured internally and it will take some time to determine his exact condition. Warth was formerly employed as a flagman at the Main street crossing of the Pennsylvania railway.

FOUND PLATT'S ADVICE OF VALUE

Roosevelt Testifies he Consulted
With Former Senator on Matters of Great Importance.

GROSS EXAMINATION ENDS

Did Not Break with Organization, he Says, Because he Did Not Want to Disrupt the Party.

(By United Press.)

Syracuse, N. Y., April 28.—Colonel Roosevelt spent his most tempestuous day on the witness stand today. After his cross examination was concluded shortly before eleven o'clock, the former president explained in detail the contributions to the 1904 Republican campaign fund and his relations with "Boss" Platt. Roosevelt said he was mistaken in testifying the contributions to his fund were $3,000,000. He said Chairman Cortelyou told him they were only about $1,800,000.

Bitter clashes between the colonel, his counsel and Barnes' attorneys constantly occurred. Roosevelt was full of vim.

"On certain points," said Roosevelt, "because of his wide knowledge I found Mr. Platt's advice of real and great value. I consulted with him on all matters of great importance during my entire administration."

"My purpose in not breaking with the organization was to avoid disrupting the Republican party as long as I could and by honorable action prevent it and also get affirmative right done at Albany," said the colonel, smacking his hands in his palms.

Ivins protested that Roosevelt be prohibited from making such gesticulations.

"They affect the minds of the jury," said Ivins.

"I shall not attempt to regulate the ordinary manner of witnesses, even in gesticulations," said the judge.

The colonel wound up yesterday by claiming as his own, speeches and interviews published in New York newspapers in which he said some things about the men he called "the bosses." The names of Barnes, Murphy, Guggenheim, Cox, Lorimer, Penrose and others were scattered through these articles.

The letters that passed between Col. Roosevelt and Senator Platt showed that the two continued to consult on friendly terms while the former was Governor, vice-President and President. In a telegram sent to Col. Roosevelt, while he was still Governor, the senator urged the signing of a bill for execution from

When the Elks, and their guests arrived at the hotel, they found that Nashville had an orchestra that could vie with any. The Princess trio played, while the banquet was served, and also played for the dance. There were approximately one hundred and forty seated at the long banquet tables.

A brief message from John H. Kiplinger, exalted ruler, who is at French Lick, was read, and Representative W. R. Jinnett was called on for a short talk. Mr. Jinnett congratulated himself on having been made an Elk and said many complimentary things of the lodge. He told of an experience he had in Indianapolis, while a member of the legislature, by which he came to know an Elk. After expressing felicitations, Mr. Jinnett said that the world was trying to learn two things, the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and that fraternal orders were doing much to bring the latter about. He avowed an abiding faith in their works and declared that they accomplished much good.

Shortly after ten o'clock the dance began at the Phi Delta hall, the Princess trio playing. The Elks and their friends danced until one o'clock, enjoying the closing feature of the evening's entertainment with as much wholesome pleasure as the first or second.

ELKS PROVE SELVES SOME ROYAL HOSTS

The Elks proved royal entertainers last night when they played the part of hosts at an informal entertainment at the club rooms, a banquet at the Windsor hotel and a dance at the Phi Delta hall. The more than one hundred and fifty guests, including Elks, their families and friends enjoyed the evening's round of festivities. The Elks colors, purple and white, were in evidence. The Windsor hotel was especially well decorated.

Once more it was demonstrated that it is not necessary for Rushville to go out of town when it wants to be entertained. With a week's work, Jess Pugh, whom we all like to claim, perfected a "company" of artists who gave a most pleasing program of music and readings, making a thoroughly enjoyable three-quarters of an hour for the Elks party and placing them in the right frame of mind for a good banquet at the Windsor.

There was Jess Pugh and Miss Martha Hogsett, who was accompanist for the "company," and Miss Louise Craig, Miss Mary Louise Bliss, Miss Norma Smith, Mrs. Francis Moor, Miss Mary Louise Poe and Hale Pearsey, who gave the opening number, the sheriff's song from "Robin Hood," and Miss Frances Frazee, who was as pleasing as ever in presenting a reading.

Particularly fetching were a couple of duets by Miss Hogsett and Jess Pugh. And then Jess did a lot of other things that no one else could do just like him. Mrs. Francis Moor sang a character number from "The Follies" than won long applause.

The closing number, for which Hale Pearsey sang the solo part, with the "chorus" assisting, left the guests humming the tune, and they were rather against leaving even though they knew a good banquet awaited them and it was then fifteen or twenty minutes past due.

When the Elks, and their guests arrived at the hotel, they found that Nashville had an orchestra that could vie with any. The Princess trio played, while the banquet was served, and also played for the dance. There were approximately one hundred and forty seated at the long banquet tables.

the franchise tax grade crossings of steam railroads and said that "our friends of New York Central, and Senator DePew were anxious."

Col. Roosevelt replied that he had received the telegram "to late" and that any way he considered the matter was one upon which he should take the "advice of the tax commission, unless it could be shown that they were wrong."

In another telegram, when Senator Platt insisted that Col. Roosevelt, then Governor, attend the meeting of a commission, the colonel, after protesting, agreed to do so and added, "but you are not an easy boss."

The colonel, when Vice President, asked that his friends be "taken care of" by the Senator. In other letters, appointments were discussed, while in one written by the senator after Col. Roosevelt was in the White House, the Cabinet to be selected by the mayor-elect of New York, Seth Low was written of.

The name of William Barnes, the colonel admitted, did not appear once in all this correspondence.

The letters between Mr. Barnes and the colonel covered a period between 1904 and 1910. Their tenor was entirely friendly and at times they almost bordered upon the formal. The appointment of men to office and a variety of political affairs were discussed and the "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" elements Col. Roosevelt said Mr. Barnes had in him, were the subject of questions which resulted.

Wrong Methods Used

The National Republican Congressional Committee has issued the following for publication:

A blunder signaled the legislative career of the present administration.

The Democratic tariff bill, first in the articles of Democratic faith, and the one achievement on which naturally they would be expected to expend their most exhaustive study and care, was so clumsily executed that it failed to accomplish the results intended. The failure was due to crude, hasty, unscientific, secret legislative methods.

Designed to furnish sufficient revenue to finance the United States treasury it has proven absolutely inadequate for that purpose.

In writing the tariff bill the Democrats dimly foresaw a possible reduction in customs receipts, although they did not know how much and did not ascertain the facts. So the income tax provision was incorporated, in the hope that it would make up for any miscalculations in the tariff bill, although the Democrats did not know and did not ascertain the facts.

But what happened when these provisions went into effect?

Customs receipts were millions of dollars below the amount needed from that source, and at the same time collections from the income tax fell many millions below the amount needed from that source. The inevitable result was to leave the treasury without sufficient money for its needs.

The failure was caused by carelessness. Had there been conscientious, open consideration of the revenue bill, sufficient to enable members of Congress to study and understand it, the reduction in revenue could have been properly safeguarded. But instead of getting accurate information and adequate estimates, the Democrats guessed at it. And they guessed wrong.

The results of this first mistake should have been a warning. But the startling fact remains that the Democrats committed the same kind of an error again. Forced by their heedlessness to provide more revenue they passed a "war tax" in time of peace. Based on a guess instead of an estimate, the war tax did not produce money enough. For months the receipts of the treasury have been daily falling short of expenditures at a rate reaching at times more than a million dollars a day. According to official estimates the deficit will probably amount to one hundred million dollars by July 1, the end of the fiscal year.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link. The fatal weakness that has characterized the work of this administration from its inception two years ago has been its eagerness to propose laws, carelessness in drafting them hasty in committee action, and stubborn refusal to permit intelligent amendment in either House or Senate after the party brand had been affixed by the all powerful caucus.

Every American citizen has had to help pay for these costly experiments. There will be still more to pay until the errors have been corrected by thoughtful, intelligent legislation.

Later articles will follow, illustrating still further the slovenly habits of legislation that have characterized the Democratic administration.

earth, for the offices except the man who can do the most good. The party has availed itself of Mr. Watson's services unstintingly. All the leaders ran to the bushes in 1912, except Watson, but it is well known that Mr. Watson stood out boldly in front, and canvassed the ranks of the enemy inviting them to joint debate to show them they were wrong. He was kindly and considerate in his arguments. He never left the stump until the work was done in November and the party was saved from an everlasting wreck. At the passing of the shadows of that day, while sunlight is growing brighter each hour for the party that kept this country for fifty years in a matchless spirit of development and up-building, when the country is coming slowly but surely back to her own, it is truth to say that there are many who disappeared from the limelight in the shadowy and troublous days, days of stress and storm, who now are not able to curb their ambition and are not slow in asking for all the offices.

We do not think that Mr. Watson need ask anybody but the people. We believe the people not only in this state, but in the other states, will rally to Mr. Watson's standard as the champion and fearless exponent of those great principles that have made for the welfare of this great country. There is no better debater anywhere. The Hoosier character is weak indeed who cannot see that the strength of Indiana is better represented in statescraft and political wisdom by holding to a man having the qualities possessed by Mr. Watson.

We grow weary of the little political critics and mischief makers who aim to criticize Mr. James E. Watson. There is nothing to criticize. He has always been steadfast and true. He was the whip of the House for fifteen years. In the lectures and orations in business men's banquets, urging the manufacturers and business men of this country to build up their factories he will become a better friend of labor in so doing than all the rest of the agitator put together. The agitator and political reformer has put this country on the bum, and we must now turn our attention, as business men and citizens, to the leadership of men like Mr. Watson and all he stands for.

We have no advice as to his candidacy for any office, but whatever he seeks, the people will give.

Barbers do Not Like Measure Designed to do Away With Massage

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., April 28.—Indianapolis barbers can't say enough against a bill pending in the Ohio legislature, which would make it illegal for barbers to give a massage. On the other hand, various Indianapolis men are wondering why in the world the Indiana legislature didn't do something of the kind and thus cut down a little on the line of talk handed out in the shops with the sign of the striped pole. The Ohio bill is of a hygienic nature and inclusion of the word massage would force a barber to pass examination in chemistry, hygiene, bacteriology, physiology, and anatomy and a few others.

MORE LAWS TO BE OBEYED NOW

Governor Ralston Today Issues
 Proclamation Placing Acts of
 Last Legislature in Effect

A TOTAL OF 191 ENACTED

Seventy-Four Effective When Signed
 By Governor and Two Specified
 for a Certain Date

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Apr. 28.—Hoosiers must obey 115 more laws today than yesterday. Governor Ralston issued his proclamation placing in effect the laws enacted by the 1915 session of the legislature.

One hundred-fifteen new laws went into force in Indiana today. Seventy-four went into effect the day they were signed by the governor because an emergency was declared which put them into effect at once. Two take effect at later specified dates. In all, 191 laws were passed this year. Under the provision of the constitution, the laws were put into force by the proclamation of the governor when receipts have been returned from the clerk of the circuit court of each county showing that he has received the quota of copies apportioned to the county.

The new acts are of great interest to all classes of our citizenship. The farmer, banker, business man, laborer, teacher, physician and public official will find in them new things which he must know to conduct his business. Those who are concerned with the public welfare will find new subjects for inquiry. On the whole, it is an important matter when in one day so many new laws affecting business relations, official conduct, public welfare and personal relations and conduct are put into effect. It behooves everyone to be informed on all the laws which effect him.

Some of the important new acts which become laws today are:

Providing for a plan of mediation and arbitration in industrial disputes; preventing blacklists by requiring service letters to employees in certain cases; providing for educational and industrial aid for the adult blind; prohibiting impersonation of blind persons; providing methods of constructing and maintaining city buildings; authorizing Fort Wayne to construct a coliseum; providing for a new method of organizing drainage districts and for the maintenance of drainage works; requiring the nomination of nearly all elective officers by direct primary requiring preservation of ballots in primaries and elections; fixing the method of electing United States senators enlarging the powers of the state entomologist in preventing diseases of trees and plants; providing a method of building flood protection works for all cities; providing for the codification of laws relating to health; fixing a new method of electing road supervisors by districts instead of townships; amending the three mile gravel law to give more discretion to the county commissioners and authorities the use of brick; providing for an educational celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of the state; putting requirements upon hotel keepers to furnish sanitary bedding; putting their wages to support the family; providing for the complete regulation of fraternal insurance companies; giving a lien to vehicles repaired; authorizing injunctions against houses of ill fame and providing for their abatement; making a new form of contract for the state printing so that the printing can be let in nine different parts; prohibiting the packing of unclean rags; penalizing tampering with safety devices on railroads; making a permanent system of registration of voters; reducing bond of school treasurers and township trustees; providing for joint high schools in certain instances; fixing tuition charges of transferred pupils at the average cost for the school; providing a payment of $50 for the burial of soldiers; providing for a commission to investigate the subject of taxation; revising the laws relating to the licensing of teachers; authorizing the establishment of a teachers' pensioning system under the supervision of the state; licensing and regulating trading stamp business; authorizing the quarantine of tuberculosis cases; requiring the reporting of cases and disinfection of premises occupied by tuberculosis patients; and making more specific requirement regarding the cutting of weeds along highways.

Some of the important acts which had previously gone into effect by reason of an emergency clause were: Providing for an examination and licensing of certified public accountants making county assessors inheritance tax appraisers and giving greater control over county assessors to the state board of tax commissioners; exempting ninety-nine year leaseholds from taxation in certain cases; allowing payment of Barrett law assessments in lump sum; authorizing organizations for the promotion of industrial development of cities; providing for more detail in the building of partition fences; providing for the regulation of contagious animal diseases such as foot and mouth disease; establishing a new park law for Fort Wayne; changing the city of Gary to a first class city; providing for the organization of quarantine districts; providing for the organization of mutual insurance companies of many kinds; regulating lobbyists; reorganizing the state militia; providing for a state charter board to pass upon the necessity of new banks and upon the stability of the organizers; providing a new system of construction and installation of street lamps; providing for workmen's compensation for industrial accidents and providing for special methods of building flood protection works in Indianapolis and Fort Wayne. These acts went into effect the day they were signed. The first one, the lobby act, having taken effect February 4.

Under the provisions of the law, copies of the acts are furnished to the clerks of the circuit courts of all the counties and are there subject to free distribution so far as the supply goes. The remaining copies of the acts are deposited in the office of the secretary of state.

WILL TEST NEW "RED LIGHT" LAW

Terre Haute Attorney Preparing to See if Rule Bill is Constitutional and Then Make Fight

DISTRICT THERE IS LARGE

(By United Press.)

Terre Haute, April 28.—To test the new rule "Red Light" law, which if it is constitutional may destroy the "tenderloins" districts as they now exist, is the purpose of Attorney Henry C. Price, of this city. Mr. Price has been in correspondence with the American Social Hygiene Association and is preparing to take up the fight with the backing of the association and public spirited citizens. Under the new Rule Law, any citizen may file an injunction against the owner of the property used for immoral purposes, mandating the owner not to rent his property for such purposes.

"The Red light" district here consists of ten blocks of houses. In the 100 houses in the district, more than 300 inmates may be found. In many instances the property is owned by reputable business men of social standing. It is expected that the test case will be fought to the supreme court of the state.

During the recent election conspiracy trial in Indianapolis, United States District Attorney Dailey declared that Terre Haute had the largest "red light" district of any city its size in the world.

The Daily Republican was in error yesterday regarding the amount of money yet to be collected from the spring installment of taxes. TO BELAST WORD IN RACE TRACKS

Motordrome in New York City Patterned From Indianapolis Course Will be Wonder

FISHER WILL BE PRESIDENT

Will Provide Seating Capacity of 200,000—Vardon to Enter Golf Tournament

BY HL SHERIDAN
(Written for United Press.)

New York, Apr. 28.—Much of the mystery surrounding the motordrome to be laid out on the site of the old Sheepshead Bay race track has been dissipated with the announcement of the promoters that the two mile course will be the last word in automobile racing courses, with a speed of 140 miles an hour as the limit of reasonable safety for drivers.

The confidence of the men fostering the motordrome project is indicated by the fact that they are providing a seating capacity of 200,000 persons. Their estimate of this high attendance figure is based on the great interest shown at Indianapolis, where the auto races at times have drawn nearly 100,000 persons, with an immediate population of only 233,000 upon which to draw. On this basis, New York's 5,000,000 would flow out over the course.

Preparations are complete for the greatest race meetings in automobile annals beginning next August. Two great meets a year will be held, with $50,000 in prizes as the attraction. In addition a 24 hour midsummer contest will be featured, with a series of matinee events for stock cars interspersed here and there.

Carl G. Fisher, founder of the Indianapolis motordrome project, has accepted the presidency of the local association and automobile men of recognized authority are slated for the board of directors.

When the open championships are contested at Baltusrol in June Harry Vardon rated the greatest golf player in the world, is expected to participate. Vardon was here two years ago, with Edward Ray, but was beaten by Quimet in the new historic match that surprised the golf world. American golfers already are preparing for the second invasion of Vardon.

GOOD NEWS

Many Rushville Readers Have Heard it and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the bad back sufferers in Rushville are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with this tested remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Samuel A. Brown, R. R. No. 10, Rushville, says: "I had a severe attack of backache and it got worse every day. Finally, the trouble got so bad that I could hardly raise my foot above the ground. When I stooped, I thought my back would break. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box, I was very much surprised at the prompt way in which they stopped the trouble. In a few days I was free from pain."

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

FIRST INSTALLMENT
"SANFORD QUEST, CRIMINOLOGIST."

The young man from the West had arrived in New York only that afternoon, and his cousin, town born and bred, had already embarked upon the task of showing him the great city. They occupied a table in a somewhat insignificant corner of one of New York's most famous roof garden restaurants. The place was crowded with diners. There were many notabilities to be pointed out. The town young man was very busy.

"Tell me," the country cousin inquired, "who is the man at a table by himself? The waiters speak to him as though he were a little god. Is he a millionaire, or a judge, or what?"

"You're in luck, Alfred," the New Yorker declared. "That's the most interesting man in New York—one of the most interesting in the world. That's Sanford Quest."

"Who's he?"

"Sanford Quest is the greatest master in criminology the world has ever known. He is a magician, a scientist, the Pierpont Morgan of his profession."

"Say, do you mean that he is a detective?"

"Yes," he said simply, "you can call him that—just in the same way that you could call Napoleon a soldier or Lincoln a statesman. He is a detective, if you like to call him that, the master detective in the world."

When Sanford Quest entered his house an hour later he glanced into two of the rooms on the ground floor, in which telegraph and telephone operators sat at their instruments. Then, by means of a small lift, he ascended to the top story and entered a large apartment wrapped in gloom until, as he crossed the threshold, he touched the switches of the electric lights. One realized then that this was a man of taste. Quest drew up an easy chair to the wide-flung window, touching a bell as he crossed the room. In a few moments the door was opened and closed noiselessly. A young woman entered with a bundle of papers.

The criminologist glanced through the papers quickly. "No further inquiries, Laura?"

She left the room almost noiselessly.

"THE TENEMENT HOUSE MYSTERY."

CHAPTER I.

"This habit of becoming late for breakfast," Lady Ashleigh remarked, as she sat down the coffee pot, "is growing upon your father. Any news, dear?"

Ella glanced up from a pile of correspondence through which she had been looking a little negligently.

"None at all, mother. My correspondence is just the usual sort of rubbish—invitations and gossip. Such a lot of invitations, by the bye."

"At your age," Lady Ashleigh declared, "that is the sort of correspondence which you should find interesting."

"You know I am not like that, mother," she protested. "My music is really the only part of life which absolutely appeals to me. Oh, why doesn't Delaney make up his mind and let father know, as he promised! . . . Here comes daddy, mum."

Lord Ashleigh loitered for a moment to raise the covers from the dishes upon a side table. Afterwards he seated himself at the table.

"I heard this morning," he said, "from your friend Delaney, Ella. He went into the matter very fully. The substance of it is that for the first year of your musical training he advises New York."

"I have not finished yet. This cablegram," he went on, drawing a little slip of blue paper from his pocket, "was brought to me this morning—"

He smoothed it out before him and read:

To Lord Ashleigh, Hamblin House, Dorset, England: I find a magnificent program arranged for at Metropolitan Opera house this year. Have taken box for your daughter, engaged the best professor in the world, and secured an apartment at the Leland, our most select and comfortable residential hotel. Understand your brother is still in South America, returning early spring, but will do our best to make your daughter's year of study as pleasant as possible. Advise her mail on Saturday by Mauretania.

"On Saturday?" Ella almost screamed.

"I shall now," Lord Ashleigh said, "leave you to talk over and discuss this matter for the rest of the day. At dinner time tonight you can tell me your decision, or rather we will discuss it together."

CHAPTER II.

"I am to take it, I believe," Lord Ashleigh began after dinner that evening, "that you have finally decided, Ella, to embrace our friend Delaney's suggestion and to leave us Saturday?"

"If you please," Ella murmured, with glowing eyes.

"You will take your own maid with you, of course," Lord Ashleigh continued. "Lenora is a good girl and I am sure she will look after you quite well, but I have decided to supplement Lenora's surveillance over your comfort by sending with you, also, a sort of courier and general attendant—whom do you think? Well, Macdougall. He has lived in New York for some years, and you will doubtless find this a great advantage, Ella."

Ella glanced over her shoulder at the two servants who were standing discreetly in the background. Her eyes rested upon the pale, expressionless face of the man who during the last few years had enjoyed her father's confidence.

For a moment a queer sense of apprehension troubled her. Was it true, she wondered, that she did not like the man? She banished the thought almost as soon as it was conceived.

"You are spoiling me, daddy," Ella sighed.

"If you think so now," he remarked, "I do not know what you will say to me presently."

He laid upon the table a very familiar morocco case, stamped with a coronet.

"Our diamonds!" Ella exclaimed.

"The Ashleigh diamonds!"

The necklace lay exposed to view, the wonderful stones flashing in the subdued light.

"In New York," Lord Ashleigh continued, "it is the custom to wear jewelry in public more, even, than in this country. Allow me!"

He leaned forward. With long, capable fingers he fastened the necklace around his daughter's neck.

"It is our farewell present to you," Lord Ashleigh declared.

Ella, impelled by some curious impulse which she could not quite understand, glanced quickly around to where the manservant was standing. For once she saw something besides the perfect automaton. His eyes, instead of being fixed at the back of his master's chair, were simply riveted upon the stones. A queer little feeling of uneasiness disturbed Ella for the moment. It passed, however, as in glancing away her attention was once more attracted by the sparkle of the jewels upon her bosom.

"Our Diamonds!" She Exclaimed. "The Ashleigh Diamonds!"

CHAPTER III.

The streets of New York were covered with a thin, powdery snow as the very luxurious car of Mrs. Delaney drew up outside the front of the Leland hotel, a little after midnight. Ella leaned over and kissed her hostess.

"Thank you, dear, ever so much, for your delightful dinner," she exclaimed, "and for bringing me home. As for the music, well, I can't talk about it. I am just going upstairs into my room to sit and think."

The car rolled off. Ella, a large umbrella held over her head by the doorkeeper, stepped up the little strip of druggist which led into the softly warmed hall of the Leland. Behind her came her maid, Lenora, and Macdougall, who had been riding on the box with the chauffeur. He paused for a moment to wipe the snow from his clothes as Ella crossed the hall to the left. Lenora turned toward him. He whispered something in her ear. For a moment she shook. Then she turned away and followed her mistress upstairs.

Arrived in her apartment, Ella threw herself with a little sigh of content into a big easy-chair before the fire and gave herself up for a few moments to reverie.

A log stirred upon the fire. She leaned forward lazily to replace it and then stopped short. Exactly opposite to her was a door which opened on to a back hall. It was used only by the servants. Just as she was in the act of leaning forward Ella became conscious of a curious hallucination.

"Lenora, come here at once."

The maid hurried in from the next room. Ella pointed to the door.

"Lenora, look outside. See if anyone is on that landing. I fancied that the door opened."

Lenora crossed the room and tried the handle. Then she turned towards her mistress in triumph.

"It is locked, my lady," she reported.

"Go down and ask Macdougall to come up. I am going to have this thing explained."

Something of her mistress' agitation seemed to have become communicated to Lenora.

She walked quickly to the back part of the hotel and ascended to the wing in which the servants' quarters were situated. Here she made her way along a corridor until she reached Macdougall's room. She knocked, and knocked again. There was no answer. She tried the door and found it was locked. Then she returned to the lift and descended once more to the floor upon which her mistress' apartments were situated. She opened the door of the suite without knocking and turned at once to the sitting room.

"I am sorry, my lady—" she began.

Then she stopped short. The lift boy, who had had a little trouble with his starting apparatus and had not as yet descended, heard the scream which broke from her lips, and a fireman in an adjacent corridor came running up almost at the same moment. Lenora was on her knees by her mistress' side. Ella was still lying in the easy-chair in which she had been seated, but her head was thrown back in an unnatural fashion. There was a red mark just across her throat.

Lenora shrieked, "She's fainted! And the diamonds—the diamonds have gone!"

A doctor, hurriedly summoned, had just completed a hasty examination when a police inspector, followed by a detective, entered.

"This is your affair, gentlemen, not mine," the doctor said gravely. "The young lady is dead. She has been cruelly strangled within the last five or ten minutes."

The inspector made a careful examination of the room.

"Tell me," he inquired, "is this the young lady who owned the wonderful Ashleigh diamonds?"

"They've gone!" Lenora shrieked. "They've been stolen! She was wearing them when I left the room!"

The inspector turned to the telephone.

"Mr. Marsham," he said, "I am afraid this will be a difficult affair. I am going to take the liberty of calling in an expert. That you, exchange? I want number one, New York city—Mr. Sanford Quest."

CHAPTER IV.

There seemed to be nothing at all original in the methods pursued by the great criminologist when confronted with this tableau of death and robbery. His remarks to the inspector were few and perfunctory. He asked only a few languid questions of Macdougall and Lenora, who were summoned to his presence.

Macdougall then turned to leave the room. Lenora was about to follow, but Quest signed to her to remain.

"I should like to have a little conversation with you about your mistress," he said to her pleasantly. "If you don't mind, I will ask you to accompany me in my car. I will send the man back with you."

They descended in the lift together and Quest handed the girl into his car. They drove quickly through the silent streets.

In a few minutes Lenora was installed in an easy chair in Quest's sitting-room.

"Lean back and make yourself comfortable," Quest invited, as he took a chair opposite to her. "I must just look through these papers."

The girl did as she was told. She opened her coat. The room was delightfully warm, almost overheated. A sense of rest crept over her. She was conscious that Quest had laid down the letters which he had been pretending to read. His eyes were fixed upon her. There was a queer new look in them, a strange new feeling creeping through her veins.

Quest's voice broke an unnatural silence.

"You are anxious to telephone someone," he said. "You looked at both the booths as we came through the hotel. Then you remembered, I think, that he would not be there yet. Telephone now. The telephone is at your right hand. You know the number."

She obeyed almost at once.

"Number 700, New York city."

"You will ask," Quest continued, "whether he is all right whether the jewels are safe."

There was a brief silence then the girl's voice.

"Are you there, James? . . . Yes, I am Lenora. Are you safe? Have you the jewels? . . . Where? . . . You are sure that you are safe? . . . No, nothing fresh has happened."

"You are at the hotel," Quest said softly. "You are going to him."

"I cannot sleep," she continued. "I am coming to you."

She set down the receiver. Quest leaned a little more closely over her.

"You know where the jewels are hidden," he said. "Tell me where?"

Her lips quivered. She made no answer.

"Very good," Quest concluded. "You need not tell me. Only remember this: At nine o'clock tomorrow morning you will bring those jewels to this apartment. . . . Rest quietly now. I want you to go to sleep."

She obeyed without hesitation. Quest watched, for a moment, her regular breathing. Then he touched a bell by his side. Laura entered almost at once.

INSPECTION OF ROADS FEATURE

Purdue Road School to be Held at Evansville Will Have a String Array of Talent

IS A MOVEMENT BY PURDUE

Purdue Experts as Well as Representative of U. S. Office of Public Roads Will Speak

The program for the Purdue road school to be held in the high school auditorium at Evansville April 29th and 30th has been completed. A survey of the talent to be present shows this is to be one of the strongest programs on good roads ever offered in the state.

An interesting feature of the work will be an automobile inspection trip over fifty miles of Vanderburg county roads. On this trip the road people will have an opportunity to study all types of roads including brick, concrete, stone, gravel and dirt.

The subject "Modern Road Surfaces" by Prof. R. L. Sackett of Purdue will cover in some detail the problems that will be noted on the morning's trip. Prof. Sackett will discuss the importance and value of the various road materials under the different degrees of traffic which they are called upon to bear.

Prof. Geo. E. Martin of Purdue, who is giving all his time in assisting road people in the state, will discuss "The Maintenance of Earth and Gravel Roads." Prof. Martin has had much experience in this work and will be able to give many helpful suggestions in the use of road graders, road drags and in the proper methods of repair work.

The round table on "Road Materials" will be of especial interest. Many samples tested by the University will be exhibited and discussed. Samples brought in by the various road people will also be exhibited and compared as to their value for the different purposes for which they are intended.

On Friday morning the subject of "Dust Prevention" will be discussed by Prof. Martin. This will be of intense interest to the people since the automobile traffic is ruining our roads through the throwing off the roads the finer materials. How this can be prevented, the advisability of using oil, etc., will all be considered.

J. H. Dodge of the Office of Public Roads will take up the subject of "Sand Clay Roads." This type of road has been most successful in the south. There are conditions in southern Indiana to which it is especially adapted. Mr. Dodge has had much experience in building these roads and will give helpful information to the people of southern Indiana.

The roads in southern Indiana are similar in many respects to those in parts of Kentucky. R. C. Terrell, state commissioner of public roads of Kentucky will be present and will give a talk on the work of that state. "The Final Cost of a Road" by Mr. Dodge and the "Maintenance of Macadam Roads" by Prof. Martin will complete the program. These subjects are of great importance and will be of value to all who attend.

The program is so arranged that plenty of time will be allowed for discussing all the subjects so that the greatest good for all who attend may be secured.

GERMANS WERE DRIVEN OUT

English Colonel Describes How His Men Rushed Enemy and Routed Them From the Town.

Note—Following is the third of stories in the Shepherd series, the second of which appeared yesterday. William G. Shepherd, United Press staff correspondent, is the only American representing an individual American press organization, now at the British front under official credentials. A fourth story by him will appear tomorrow.

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD.
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
(Copyright 1915 by United Press.)
(Copyright in Great Britain.)

With the British Army in Northern France, April 16. (By Mail to New York.) The road to Neuve Chappelle, England's newest possession is sunken; it's the road of the trenches.

As soon as you enter trenchdom of the British army before Neuve Chappelle. You don't leave the shelter of trenches until you're in the town. And when you're in the town you don't leave it, either.

Neuve Chappelle is blown to pieces. Its earth and street, even its graveyard, has been churned by shells.

From a zigzag trench you get first view of it; it is desolation itself. The mystery is that men will fight for such a place, but the battle of Neuve Chappelle is already finding its place in history as a tremendous achievement of an English general and this group of the debris piles that you see a third of a mile distant is the rent that Neuve Chappelle, the quiet little French village that has never before been noticed by the great world, pays for its niche in the annals of human affairs.

You're plodding along the trench. "Digby MacDonald," calls the colonel who is guiding you, as he stops before a cloth that seems to be hung like wall paper on the trench wall. The cloth moves; a man's head appears behind it, tanned and smiling a moment later you're being introduced to an English colonel.

Digby MacDonald helped to make these trenches; he came here first with his men during the days when the Germans were sweeping Calaisward and when he had to order his men into a ditch beside the LaBasse road. Here's the LaBasse road; and here's Digby MacDonald and his men in the same old spot. The months passed since last October and this little bunch of men held on, across the roads the Germans held on, too. Night and day, night and day, for thirty days, for a hundred days, they were deadlocked like this in the trenches they had made.

"Look over the trench. There's Neuve Chappelle," said Digby MacDonald.

You hesitate about raising your head.

"It's all right," he said. "The German trench is right over there between us and the village. But it's clear of Germans now and the German trenches are 400 yards beyond the town."

This is your first clear glimpse of Neuve Chappelle. You're really in its outskirts. It is only on the other side of the meadow from you, an eighth of a mile away. And across the meadow you see a man strolling towards you dressed in khaki, inspecting telephone posts, apparently. You're standing on an elevated roadway now, behind a shelter of sandbags and the meadow lies below you.

"It was from these trenches beside the roadway that our men rushed over the road onto the meadow and against that German trench in the battle," explains one of the officers. "Behind them were the reserves. They came piling over this road by thousands."

While he is talking the khaki person in the meadow is coolly strolling around and whistling. So are rifle bullets, now and then. Some are uncomfortably close; they are spent bullets and they're noisier than bullets newly sent.

All this time the German and English shells had been intertwining their pathways in the air above us. A whine came near to us on our right and a hundred yards away, a shell exploded and threw up a huge cloud of earth, topped by smoke.

On our right, five minutes later, another shell fell, but further distant. Five of them came within fifteen minutes. We took to the trenches again and advanced to Neuve Chappelle. While you're in the town you can't see it. Your whole world is the wall of the trench.

Message No. 5

To the Business Men of Rushville

The prosperity of a city is in direct proportion to the local pride. Where local pride runs high, prosperity has a firm foothold. Such a town is a good place to live and do business in.

Paint helps to a remarkable degree in spreading an impression of prosperity throughout a community. It gives a fresh, new, inviting look wherever it is used. Municipal buildings, stores and homes feel its good effects. Growing business is bound to be one of the direct results of a liberal use of paint, not from any magic in the paint, but because of the pride which is stimulated.

Selling Is MORE than Trading Stock for Money!

Selling is part of the scheme of business. Most anyone can sell once, but selling so you can create permanent customers is selling successfully. That is why we carry the large stock of buggies we have on our sample floor for prospective customers or purchasers to make their selections from. They don't have to take something they don't want, as we carry every style of buggy that there is a demand for. Then after the customer has made his selection from our stock we tell him exactly what the buggy is and it has to be just as we represent it or we make it that way. The customer takes no chances. He is sure to get just what he pays for. ONE sale reduces itself to a confidence game unless the buyer is perfectly satisfied. Satisfaction sends a customer away with a smile that won't come off. That is why our buggy business has grown. We have found out how to hold customers after we get them and every satisfied customer is bound to bring a new customer sooner or later. Right now our stock of buggies is complete and if you are needing a buggy come in and make your selection. We have the style you want and we would be glad to have you for one of our satisfied customers. We know you will be glad when you give us your vehicle business, so do it now.

PASSES INTO HANDS OF THE ALLIED ARMY

Offensive Taken From Germans in France and Belgium and Lost Territory Will be Retaken.

ENEMY JUST DIGS SELF OUT

(By United Press.) London, April 28.—The offensive in France and Belgium has passed into the hands of the allies. Advances from a half-dozen points today indicated that in spite of the strength of the German line, it was wavering under repeated assaults at certain points. The weight of the Belgian-French-British combined forces in northern France is being thrown against the elbow of the German new line around St. Julian which, it is believed, Sir John French has determined must be recaptured. The Germans have not been able to do more than dig themselves into their new positions, their supers having been unable to construct permanent entanglements. Military experts at the war office declare that it will be possible to retake all of the lost territory without great loss of life.

FRENCH CRUISER IS SUNK

Leon Gambetta, Headed for Italian Shore, Finally Goes Down.

Paris, April 28.—The big French armored cruiser Leon Gambetta, of 12,352 ton displacement, has been torpedoed and sunk, presumably by an Austrian submarine, in the Adriatic off Otranto. It is not yet known how many of the crew were drowned but the minister of the marine believes some were saved.

The French cruiser was steaming slowly when the hostile submarine launched the torpedo which struck her amidship on the starboard side. The crew was summoned on board and the disabled warship headed toward the Italian coast. When off the lighthouse of Santa Maria, the Gambetta gave a lurch to starboard and turned over and sank removed his coat and laid it over the edge of an ash barrel. Now this did look suspicious. The policeman stuck his head out the back door and asked the fellow his name and what he was doing. The fellow answered something and then went into "high". The last the policeman saw of him, the youthful sunrise Romeo was beating a hasty retreat up the alley, his coat slung over one arm and his telescope bag dangling from the other.

The Indiana Road Preserving Company, the firm having the contract for oiling the streets of the city, has ordered a car load of oil and expects to begin oiling the first of next week. The council decided not to start the work until the temperature was up around the seventy mark and as it has been that for several days the company was told to go ahead with the work. The street commissioner has been busy the past weeks getting the streets in shape for the oil, and everything is now ready upon the arrival of the large tank.

Now for the denouement: it develops that there was a maid in a neighbor's house who has aspirations to be a Juliet, and naturally, to be thwarted, would make her very angry. It is quoted on reliable authority that she is not now on speaking terms with this particular arm of the law. How she came by the knowledge that her Romeo had been driven away is not known. Of course, there is always the possibility that the little bird might have told her.

DETAILS MURDER OF AN AMERICAN

Letter Describes Horrible Death John C. McManus Met at Hands of Zapata Soldiers in Mexico

ATTACKED BY ABOUT 400 MEN

Struck by Dumdum Bullet and His Head Blown Off—Mexicans Took Everything in Sight

Chicago, Ill., April 28.—A letter from Mrs. John C. McManus, dated at Mexico City, March 13, three days after her husband was murdered by Zapata soldiers, reached Mrs. McManus's sister-in-law, Miss Elizabeth McManus here. The envelope was marked: "Received through Department of State in diplomatic pouch."

Much of the letter is devoted to details made public in newspaper dispatches but it further says:

"We all begged John to come with us, or to move the stock closer to the city, but he scoffed at the idea, saying that he was capable of protecting himself. I am just beginning to realize the hell he lived through to do it. Because I was so worried about his safety he told me of the numerous times he was shot at and searched and how often he had to face alone the danger of present conditions in Mexico. It is hard to imagine a case of greater bravery and courage or a more wanton murder than his."

Mrs. McManus tried to warn her husband by telephone of the movement of the soldiers, but the wires were cut between the city and Mr. McManus' dairy ranch. Next word was received that the ranch was being attacked.

"I called up every one who could give assistance, beginning with the Brazilian Legation," continued the letter. "The legation immediately sent a machine with flags and a protest, but they arrived too late."

Mrs. McManus went with others to the ranch house.

"And such a sight," she wrote. "John had to be lowered from the roof, where he had gone the better to protect the place, and—oh, I can't write about it. I didn't see him, I couldn't. He had been hit in the head at close range with a dumdum bullet, and the whole top of his head was gone."

"The house was beyond description. The windows were peppered with bullets. About 400 men joined in the attack. The floors were in confusion and strewn with broken glass upset furniture, dresser drawers, clothes, books, pictures, broken eggs and dirt. They took what they wanted and threw the rest on the floor.

"You probably think it strange that I do not now leave for the states but I am placed like so many other Americans. Here I can support my family with comparative ease, but to give my property away, as I would have to if I left now, and then try to make a living in the states, would be practically impossible."

The letter stated that the funeral was attended by nearly every person in the foreign colony.

Among the buildings destroyed was the great public library where the fire started shortly after nine o'clock last night.

WORK AHEAD FOR DIXIE BOOSTERS

Resolution of Highway Commission
Calls For Data on all Routes
Under Consideration.

THIS WAY HAS GOOD CHANCE

Carl G. Fisher May Vote For Cincinnati Route Because of Bad
Road Near Sellersburg.

A few automobiles have been promised for the Dixie highway booster trip to Brookville Friday, but not enough have been arranged for to make a good showing for Rushville and it is urged by persons interested in the project that they get their friends to lay their plans to drive to the Franklin county seat. Aside from the real purpose of the trip, it will furnish an excellent pleasure ride.

No further word has been received from Brookville concerning the meeting, but Brookville's immemorial public spiritedness assures a good crowd. It is declared that Rushville should show that it is interested and that it would like to see a project of the size of the Dixie highway movement touch Rushville. According to reports from Seymour the Indianapolis-to-Louisville route does not have as good a show as it was first thought, because of an objection of Carl G. Fisher's one of the two Dixie highway commissioners from this state, to a stretch of road forty miles long in southern Indiana between Crothersville and Sellersburg.

W. S. Gilbreath secretary of the Hoosier Motor Club of Indianapolis, who is one of the leading advocates of the highway addressed a mass meeting of citizens at Seymour. Mr. Gilbreath told how he and Mr. Fisher had twice covered the route between Indianapolis and New Albany and had found the forty miles of roads almost impassable. He censured the people for having permitted a traction company to make the highway their right-of-way, thus crowding users into the ditch.

"I am authorized by Mr. Fisher to say to you," Mr. Gilbreath said "that unless there is some way to awaken the people in that district between Crothersville and Sellersburg to the situation, he will be compelled, for safety's sake, to vote for the Cincinnati route of the Dixie highway. It seems incredible to him that a county or township would permit a traction company to impudently preempt its highway, such as has been done in southern Indiana."

It develops that there is a lot of work ahead for the cities which seek

RED MEN SEE DRILLS AND HEAR SPEECHES

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of the Founding of Lodge is Duly Observed at Wigwam Here.

P. J. LYNCH MAKES ADDRESS

Members of the Red Men's lodge and the daughters of Pocahontas heard appropriate speeches and witnessed drills last night at the local wigwam in commemoration of the founding of the Red Men's lodge twenty-five years ago. The large assembly hall in the wigwam was packed with people. After the program, refreshments were served in the dining room.

The meeting was opened with a prayer by the Rev. C. M. Yocum, pastor of the Main Street Christian church. Will Felts presided and the opening address was made by O. C. Norris, past great sachem of Indiana. Speeches were made by Chauncey W. Duncan of this city and P. J. Lynch of Newcastle, both of which were applauded.

The drills were the climax of the evening. Each team had a surprise in store. Members of the teams of Mahoning council and Lurline council, D. of P., which gave the first and second degrees, were dressed in white with their insignia on, and the drill team of Tanpah tribe No. 102, which gave the third degree, appeared in full dress uniform.

HELPED THE SHERIFF.

PRAISES WATSON LABOR EXPONENT

Vincennes Commercial Says, in Editorial, That he is Second Only to McKinley

IS A LEADER OF ABILITY

When all Leaders Ran to Bushes in 1912, He Canvassed Ranks of Enemy Inviting Them to Debate

Criticism for the Cincinnati Enquirer and deep tribute to James E. Watson of this city as a true exponent of labor, second only to McKinley, a leader and debater of exceptional ability, is contained in an editorial from the Vincennes Commercial as follows:

The Indianapolis correspondent of the Enquirer the other day in what we call a subnormal editorial criticism, suggested that it was not known positively what Mr. Jas. E. Watson was going to do, and declared that Watson's friends were up in the air because of labor's antagonism to him. The article further criticized Mr. Watson for making public addresses to business men's clubs and manufacturers. This sort of political sham has gone about far enough. The Enquirer ought to have better sense than to print such rot. Mr. Watson is Indiana's leading public speaker. As an orator he has a national reputation. As the statesman who is posted on all public questions and the foremost advocate of the tariff proposition in this country, his services are sought everywhere by club and Chamber of Commerce, Manufacturers Associations, and he has invitations without end to address business men upon topics about which they desire information. Mr. Watson has never been, and is not now an opponent of labor. On the contrary, he is the champion of labor's rights in this country. Especially so, because he is the leading advocate of the tariff propaganda, and in round terms has defined his position on that question. The intelligent and thinking element of the labor party understands this proposition pretty well. But there are some demagogues perhaps among the leaders, who oppose Mr. Watson merely to attract attention to themselves and work out some underlying motive. There is no man in the country who has worked more assiduously for the uplift and upbuilding of the true conditions in this country that will advance the employment of labor. He has fought the free trade party with great vehemence and in fighting the free trade party he has become the leading exponent of labor's cause in this country.

What is the use of any more shams such as the fraudulent, trumped-up attacks upon Watson made by certain labor exponents against him in 1908. The Enquirer correspondent knows these facts. There is no room for criticism whatever of Mr. Watson on that account. Next to McKinley, Watson is the leading exponent of labor protection in this country through the tariff. His argument is to "Open the Mills," and when the mills are once opened labor can take care of itself. Labor organizations know that too well, and we think it is due time, right now, for the labor organizations to squelch just such talk as Tucker reports or the Enquirer. It is time for co-operation, and for building up instead of breaking down. We need men of the great debating ability of Mr. James E. Watson to lead the country in this sort of propaganda.

Some way the idle statesmen who loaf around the Columbia Club at Indianapolis, are for everybody on

TWO SCHOOLS TO HOLD EXERCISES

Commencements of Anderson and Posey Township High Schools Will Take Place Tonight

ONE AT MOSCOW LAST NIGHT

Annual Banquet of Milroy High School Alumni Association is in Nature of Home-Coming

The Milroy commencement will be held tonight marking the last of a week's festivities in connection with the close of school. The commencement address will be delivered by George R. Grose, president of the DePauw University. The diplomas will be presented by W. E. Wagoner, superintendent of the Milroy schools. Miss Leona Thomas is on the program for a violin solo and Wagoner's orchestra will play.

This year's class is composed of thirteen members as follows: The Misses Emily Dove Morgan, Clara Mable Riggs, Nellie Catherine Myers, Agnes V. Stewart, and Elmer F. Jones, Leland R. Harrison, Dolph W. Crane, Richard L. Power, Carlos H. Mansfield, Cliff B. Staples, Clarence L. Scull, Willard N. White and Willie L. Robeson.

The Milroy Alumni Association held their annual banquet last evening in the auditorium of the school building there. This gathering is an annual affair and was attended as usual by almost the entire body of the alumni. The event is always in the nature of a home-coming for many living away from Rush county and Milroy. The first part of the evening was spent by the members in greeting each other and going over the days gone by. A five course banquet was served in the basement.

The election of officers for next year closed the events of the evening. The new officers of the association are as follows: Lyle Power, president; Ray Shelby, vice-president; Miss Claudine Ballard, secretary; Donald Bottorff, treasurer and Mrs. James McKee, historian.

After the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. H. F. Phillippi, the toast master, C. C. Richey aptly introduced various members of the association, who made impromptu talks. The regular program was followed and talks were made by Prof. Wagoner, Mrs. Fred Shelhorn, Miss Florence Elstun, Mrs. Everett Bottorff and Lyle Power. The banquet ended by all singing "Auld Lang Sang."

The Arlington high school commencement will also be held tonight. This is the only conflict in high school commencement dates in the county. The class address will be delivered by the Rev. C. W. Whitman and the musical numbers on the program will be furnished by the Downey orchestra. The exercises will open with prayer by the Rev. D. L. Milligan and the benediction will be pronounced by the Rev. T. J. Anthony. Diplomas will be presented by the county superintendent to Clara Sunman, Elizabeth Nelson, Nellie Woods, Beatrice Bagley and Mary Woods.

The Orange township high school commencement was held at the Moscow Christian church last night. In the absence of the Rev. Harry G. Hill, of Indianapolis, who is ill, the Rev. Mr. Shouse of Greencastle spoke to the class on the subject, "The Humor and Philosophy of Life." The address was replete with sound advice that ascended above the trit sayings, and stringent humor. Wagoner's orchestra played in fine fashion and was liberally applauded. Diplomas were given to Miss Helena Raynes and Miss Ina Richey.

PILE OF SHINGLES SAVES MAN'S LIFE

Sidney Warth Falls From Top of House Today and May be Internally Injured.

Sidney Warth, 1023 North Perkins street, was seriously injured this morning in a fall from the roof of a house in North Sexton street. Warth was helping shingle a house owned by Mrs. Owen Kineaid, and in some manner lost his balance and fell a distance of fifteen feet to the ground. But for a pile of shingles on which he fell, Warth probably would have been killed.

He was badly cut and bruised and the attending physician states that complications may yet develop of a critical nature. Warth was rendered unconscious and for a time it was thought he would die. Warth may be injured internally and it will take some time to determine his exact condition. Warth was formerly employed as a flagman at the Main street crossing of the Pennsylvania railway.

FOUND PLATT'S ADVICE OF VALUE

Roosevelt Testifies he Consulted With Former Senator on Matters of Great Importance.

GROSS EXAMINATION ENDS

Did Not Break with Organization, he Says, Because he Did Not Want to Disrupt the Party.

(By United Press.)

Syracuse, N. Y., April 28.—Colonel Roosevelt spent his most tempestuous day on the witness stand today. After his cross examination was concluded shortly before eleven o'clock, the former president explained in detail the contributions to the 1904 Republican campaign fund and his relations with "Boss" Platt. Roosevelt said he was mistaken in testifying the contributions to his fund were $3,000,000. He said Chairman Cortelyou told him they were only about $1,800,000.

Bitter clashes between the colonel, his counsel and Barnes' attorneys constantly occurred. Roosevelt was full of vim.

"On certain points," said Roosevelt, "because of his wide knowledge I found Mr. Platt's advice of real and great value. I consulted with him on all matters of great importance during my entire administration."

"My purpose in not breaking with the organization was to avoid disrupting the Republican party as long as I could and by honorable action prevent it and also get affirmative right done at Albany," said the colonel, smacking his hands in his palms.

Ivins protested that Roosevelt be prohibited from making such gesticulations.

"They affect the minds of the jury," said Ivins.

"I shall not attempt to regulate the ordinary manner of witnesses, even in gesticulations," said the judge.

The colonel wound up yesterday by claiming as his own, speeches and interviews published in New York newspapers in which he said some things about the men he called "the bosses." The names of Barnes, Murphy, Guggenheim, Cox, Lorimer, Penrose and others were scattered through these articles.

The letters that passed between Col. Roosevelt and Senator Platt showed that the two continued to consult on friendly terms while the former was Governor, vice-President and President. In a telegram sent to Col. Roosevelt, while he was still Governor, the senator urged the signing of a bill for execution from

ROBY WILL APPLY FOR WRIT OF ERROR

Attorneys Representing Roberts and Ten Others Will Start Action on Court of Appeals.

WILL BE FIRST FORMAL STEP

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., April 28.—Frank S. Roby, attorney for Donn M. Roberts, former mayor of Terre Haute and ten others convicted election conspirators in Leavenworth prison will go to Chicago Friday to apply to the United States circuit court of appeals for a writ of error. The purpose is to have the records of the recent trial transferred from the district court of Indiana to the higher court and obtain a review of the case.

When he made this announcement today, Roby said this would be the first formal action so far taken in the case before the higher court.

ELKS PROVE SELVES SOME ROYAL HOSTS

The Elks proved royal entertainers last night when they played the part of hosts at an informal entertainment at the club rooms, a banquet at the Windsor hotel and a dance at the Phi Delta hall. The more than one hundred and fifty guests, including Elks, their families and friends enjoyed the evening's round of festivities. The Elks colors, purple and white, were in evidence. The Windsor hotel was especially well decorated.

Once more it was demonstrated that it is not necessary for Rushville to go out of town when it wants to be entertained. With a week's work, Jess Pugh, whom we all like to claim, perfected a "company" of artists who gave a most pleasing program of music and readings, making a thoroughly enjoyable three-quarters of an hour for the Elks party and placing them in the right frame of mind for a good banquet at the Windsor.

There was Jess Pugh and Miss Martha Hogsett, who was accompanist for the "company," and Miss Louise Craige, Miss Mary Louise Bliss, Miss Norma Smith, Mrs. Francis Moor, Miss Mary Louise Poe and Hale Pearsey, who gave the opening number, the sheriff's song from "Robin Hood," and Miss Frances Frazee, who was as pleasing as ever in presenting a reading.

Particularly fetching were a couple of duets by Miss Hogsett and Jess Pugh. And then Jess did a lot of other things that no one else could do just like him. Mrs. Francis Moor sang a character number from "The Follies" than won long applause.

The closing number, for which Hale Pearsey sang the solo part, with the "chorus" assisting, left the guests humming the tune, and they were rather against leaving even though they knew a good banquet awaited them and it was then fifteen or twenty minutes past due.

When the Elks and their guests arrived at the hotel, they found that Rushville had an orchestra that could vie with any. The Princess trio played while the banquet was served, and also played for the dance. There were approximately one hundred and forty seated at the long banquet tables.

A brief message from John H. Kiplinger, exalted ruler, who is at French Lick, was read, and Representative W. R. Jinnett was called on for a short talk. Mr. Jinnett congratulated himself on having been made an Elk and said many complimentary things of the lodge. He told of an experience he had in Indianapolis, while a member of the legislature, by which he came to know an Elk. After expressing felicitations, Mr. Jinnett said that the world was trying to learn two things, the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, and that fraternal orders were doing much to bring the latter about. He avowed an abiding faith in their works and declared that they accomplished much good.

Shortly after ten o'clock the dance began at the Phi Delta hall, the Princess trio playing. The Elks and their friends danced until one o'clock, enjoying the closing feature of the evening's entertainment with as much wholesome pleasure as the first or second.

the franchise tax grade crossings of steam railroads and said that "our friends of New York Central, and Senator DePew were anxious."

Col. Roosevelt replied that he had received the telegram "to late" and that any way he considered the matter was one upon which he should take the "advice of the tax commission, unless it could be shown that they were wrong."

In another telegram, when Senator Platt insisted that Col. Roosevelt, then Governor, attend the meeting of a commission, the colonel, after protesting, agreed to do so and added, "but you are not an easy boss."

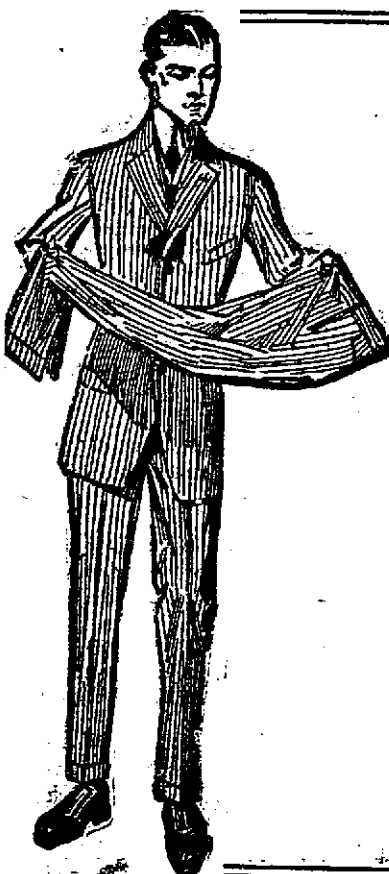

The colonel, when Vice President, asked that his friends be "taken care of" by the Senator. In other letters, appointments were discussed, while in one written by the senator after Col. Roosevelt was in the White House, the Cabinet, to be selected by the mayor-elect of New York, Seth Low was written of.

The name of William Barnes, the colonel admitted, did not appear once in all this correspondence.

The letters between Mr. Barnes and the colonel covered a period between 1904 and 1910. Their tenor was entirely friendly and at times they almost bordered upon the formal. The appointment of men to office and a variety of political affairs were discussed and the "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" elements Col. Roosevelt said Mr. Barnes had in him, were the subject of questions which resulted.

Wrong Methods Used

The National Republican Congressional Committee has issued the following for publication:

A blunder signalized the legislative career of the present administration.

The Democratic tariff bill, first in the articles of Democratic faith, and the one achievement on which naturally they would be expected to expend their most exhaustive study and care, was so clumsily executed that it failed to accomplish the results intended. The failure was due to crude, hasty, unscientific, secret legislative methods.

Designed to furnish sufficient revenue to finance the United States treasury it has proven absolutely inadequate for that purpose.

In writing the tariff bill the Democrats dimly foresaw a possible reduction in customs receipts, although they did not know how much and did not ascertain the facts. So the income tax provision was incorporated, in the hope that it would make up for any miscalculations in the tariff bill, although the Democrats did not know and did not ascertain the facts.

But what happened when these provisions went into effect?

Customs receipts were millions of dollars below the amount needed from that source, and at the same time collections from the income tax fell many millions below the amount needed from that source. The inevitable result was to leave the treasury without sufficient money for its needs.

The failure was caused by carelessness. Had there been conscientious, open consideration of the revenue bill, sufficient to enable members of Congress to study and understand it, the reduction in revenue could have been properly safeguarded. But instead of getting accurate information and adequate estimates, the Democrats guessed at it. And they guessed wrong.

The results of this first mistake should have been a warning. But the startling fact remains that the Democrats committed the same kind of an error again. Forced by their heedlessness to provide more revenue they passed a "war tax" in time of peace. Based on a guess instead of an estimate, the war tax did not produce money enough. For months the receipts of the treasury have been daily falling short of expenditures at a rate reaching at times more than a million dollars a day. According to official estimates the deficit will probably amount to one hundred million dollars by July 1, the end of the fiscal year.

No chain is stronger than its weakest link. The fatal weakness that has characterized the work of this administration from its inception two years ago has been its eagerness to propose laws, carelessness in drafting them, haste in committee action, and stubborn refusal to permit intelligent amendment in either House or Senate after the party brand had been affixed by the all powerful caucus.

Every American citizen has had to help pay for these costly experiments. There will be still more to pay until the errors have been corrected by thoughtful, intelligent legislation.

Later articles will follow, illustrating still farther the slovenly habits of legislation that have characterized the Democratic administration.

PRAISES WATSON LABOR EXPONENT

earth for the offices except the man who can do the most good. The party has availed itself of Mr. Watson's services unstintingly. All the leaders ran to the bushes in 1912, except Watson, but it is well known that Mr. Watson stood out boldly in front, and canvassed the ranks of the enemy inviting them to joint debate to show them they were wrong. He was kindly and considerate in his arguments. He never left the stump until the work was done in November and the party was saved from an everlasting wreck. At the passing of the shadows of that day, while sunlight is growing brighter each hour for the party that kept this country for fifty years in a matchless spirit of development and up-building, when the country is coming slowly but surely back to her own, it is truth to say that there are many who disappeared from the limelight in the shadowy and troublous days, days of stress and storm, who now are not able to curb their ambition and are not slow in asking for all the offices.

We do not think that Mr. Watson need ask anybody but the people. We believe the people not only in this state, but in the other states, will rally to Mr. Watson's standard as the champion and fearless exponent of those great principles that have made for the welfare of this great country. There is no better debater anywhere. The Hoosier character is weak indeed who cannot see that the strength of Indiana is better represented in statescraft and political wisdom by holding to a man having the qualities possessed by Mr. Watson.

We grow weary of the little political critics and mischief makers who aim to criticize Mr. James E. Watson. There is nothing to criticize. He has always been steadfast and true. He was the whip of the House for fifteen years. In the lectures and orations in business men's banquets, urging the manufacturers and business men of this country to build up their factories he will become a better friend of labor in so doing than all the rest of the agitator put together. The agitator and political reformer has put this country on the bum, and we must now turn our attention, as business men and citizens, to the leadership of men like Mr. Watson and all he stands for.

We have no advice as to his candidacy for any office, but whatever he seeks, the people will give.

Barbers do Not Like Measure Designed to do Away With Massage

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., April 28.—Indianapolis barbers can't say enough against a bill pending in the Ohio legislature, which would make it illegal for barbers to give a massage. On the other hand, various Indianapolis men are wondering why in the world the Indiana legislature didn't do something of the kind and thus cut down a little on the line of talk handed out in the shops with the sign of the striped pole. The Ohio bill is of a hygienic nature and inclusion of the word massage would force a barber to pass examination in chemistry, hygiene, bacteriology, physiology, and anatomy and a few others.

MORE LAWS TO BE OBEYED NOW

Governor Ralston Today Issues
 Proclamation Placing Acts of
 Last Legislature in Effect

A TOTAL OF 191 ENACTED

Seventy-Four Effective When Signed
 By Governor and Two Specified
 for a Certain Date

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Ind., Apr. 28.—Hoosiers must obey 115 more laws today than yesterday. Governor Ralston issued his proclamation placing in effect the laws enacted by the 1915 session of the legislature.

One hundred-fifteen new laws went into force in Indiana today. Seventy-four went into effect the day they were signed by the governor because an emergency was declared which put them into effect at once. Two take effect at later specified dates. In all, 191 laws were passed this year. Under the provision of the constitution, the laws were put into force by the proclamation of the governor when receipts have been returned from the clerk of the circuit court of each county showing that he has received the quota of copies apportioned to the county.

The new acts are of great interest to all classes of our citizenship. The farmer, banker, business man, laborer, teacher, physician and public official will find in them new things which he must know to conduct his business. Those who are concerned with the public welfare will find new subjects for inquiry. On the whole, it is an important matter when in one day so many new laws affecting business relations, official conduct, public welfare and personal relations and conduct are put into effect. It behooves everyone to be informed on all the laws which effect him.

Some of the important new acts which became laws today are:

Providing for a plan of mediation and arbitration in industrial disputes; preventing blacklists by requiring service letters to employees in certain cases; providing for educational and industrial aid for the adult blind; prohibiting impersonation of blind persons; providing methods of constructing and maintaining city buildings; authorizing Fort Wayne to construct a coliseum; providing for a new method of organizing drainage districts and for the maintenance of drainage works; requiring the nomination of nearly all elective officers by direct primary; requiring preservation of ballots in primaries and elections; fixing the method of electing United States senators enlarging the powers of the state entomologist in preventing diseases of trees and plants; providing a method of building flood protection works for all cities; providing for the collection of laws relating to health; fixing a new method of electing road supervisors by districts instead of townships; amending the three mile gravel law to give more discretion to the county commissioners and authorities the use of brick; providing for an educational celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of the state; putting requirements upon hotel keepers to furnish sanitary bedding; putting their wages to support the family; providing for the complete regulation of fraternal insurance companies; giving a lien to vehicles repaired; authorizing injunctions against houses of ill fame and providing for their abatement; making a new form of contract for the state printing so that the printing can be let in nine different parts; prohibiting the packing of unclean rags; penalizing tampering with safety devices on railroads; making a permanent system of registration of voters; reducing bond of school treasurers and township trustees; providing for joint high schools in certain instances; fixing tuition charges of transferred pupils at the average cost for the school; providing a payment of $50 for the burial of soldiers; providing for a commission to investigate the subject of taxation; revising the laws relating to the licensing of teachers; authorizing the establishment of a teachers' pensioning system under the supervision of the state; licensing and regulating trading stamp business; authorizing the quarantine of tuberculosis cases; requiring the reporting of cases and disinfection of premises occupied by tuberculosis patients; and making more specific requirement regarding the cutting of weeds along highways.

Some of the important acts which had previously gone into effect by reason of an emergency clause were: Providing for an examination and licensing of certified public accounts making county assessors inheritance tax appraisers and giving greater control over county assessors to the state board of tax commissioners; exempting ninety-nine year leaseholds from taxation in certain cases; allowing payment of Barrett law assessments in lump sum; authorizing organizations for the promotion of industrial development of cities; providing for more detail in the building of partition fences; providing for the regulation of contagious animal diseases such as foot and mouth disease; establishing a new park law for Fort Wayne; changing the city of Gary to a first class city; providing for the organization of quarantine districts; providing for the organization of mutual insurance companies of many kinds; regulating lobbyists; reorganizing the state militia; providing for a state charter board to pass upon the necessity of new banks and upon the stability of the organizers; providing a new system of construction and installation of street lamps; providing for workmen's compensation for industrial accidents and providing for special methods of building flood protection works in Indianapolis and Fort Wayne. These acts went into effect the day they were signed. The first one, the lobby act, having taken effect February 4.

Under the provisions of the law, copies of the acts are furnished to the clerks of the circuit courts of all the counties and are there subject to free distribution so far as the supply goes. The remaining copies of the acts are deposited in the office of the secretary of state.

WILL TEST NEW “RED LIGHT” LAW

Terre Haute Attorney Preparing to See if Rule Bill is Constitutional and Then Make Fight

DISTRICT THERE IS LARGE

(By United Press.)

Terre Haute, April 28.—To test the new rule “Red Light” law, which if it is constitutional may destroy the “tenderloins” districts as they now exist, is the purpose of Attorney Henry C. Price, of this city. Mr. Price has been in correspondence with the American Social Hygiene Association and is preparing to take up the fight with the backing of the association and public spirited citizens. Under the new Rule Law, any citizen may file an injunction against the owner of the property used for immoral purposes, mandating the owner not to rent his property for such purposes.

“The Red light” district here consists of ten blocks of houses. In the 100 houses in the district, more than 300 inmates may be found. In many instances the property is owned by reputable business men of social standing. It is expected that the test case will be fought to the supreme court of the state.

During the recent election conspiracy trial in Indianapolis, United States District Attorney Dailey declared that Terre Haute had the largest “red light” district of any city its size in the world.

FISHER WILL BE PRESIDENT

Will Provide Seating Capacity of

BY HL SHERIDAN
(Written for United Press.)

New York, Apr. 28.—Much of the mystery surrounding the motordrome to be laid out on the site of the old Sheepshead Bay race track has been dissipated with the announcement of the promoters that the two mile course will be the last word in automobile racing courses, with a speed of 140 miles an hour as the limit of reasonable safety for drivers.

The confidence of the men fostering the motordrome project is indicated by the fact that they are providing a seating capacity of 200,000 persons. Their estimate of this high attendance figure is based on the great interest shown at Indianapolis, where the auto races at times have drawn nearly 100,000 persons, with an immediate population of only 233,000 upon which to draw. On this basis, New York's 5,000,000 would flow out over the course.

Preparations are complete for the greatest race meetings in automobile annuals beginning next August. Two great meets a year will be held, with $50,000 in prizes as the attraction. In addition a 24 hour midsummer contest will be featured, with a series of matinee events for stock cars interspersed here and there.

Carl G. Fisher, founder of the Indianapolis motordrome project, has accepted the presidency of the local association and automobile men of recognized authority are slated for the board of directors.

When the open championships are contested at Baltusrol in June Harry Vardon rated the greatest golf player in the world, is expected to participate. Vardon was here two years ago, with Edward Ray, but was beaten by Ouimet in the new historic match that surprised the golf world. American golfers already are preparing for the second invasion of Vardon.

When I stooped, I thought my back would break. Someone advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box. I was very much surprised at the prompt way in which they stopped the trouble. In a few days I was free from pain.”

THE CHARM OF MOTHERHOOD

Enhanced By Perfect Physical Health.

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The BLACK BOX by E. Phillips Oppenheim

FIRST INSTALLMENT

"SANFORD QUEST, CRIMINOLOGIST."

The young man from the West had arrived in New York only that afternoon, and his cousin, town born and bred, had already embarked upon the task of showing him the great city. They occupied a table in a somewhat insignificant corner of one of New York's most famous roof garden restaurants. The place was crowded with diners. There were many notabilities to be pointed out. The town young man was very busy.

"Tell me," the country cousin inquired, "who is the man at a table by himself? The waiters speak to him as though he were a little god. Is he a millionaire, or a judge, or what?" "You're in luck, Alfred," the New Yorker declared. "That's the most interesting man in New York—one of the most interesting in the world. That's Sanford Quest."

"Who's he?" "Sanford Quest is the greatest master in criminology the world has ever known. He is a magician, a scientist, the Pierpont Morgan of his profession."

"Say, do you mean that he is a detective?" "Yes," he said simply, "you can call him that—just in the same way that you could call Napoleon a soldier or Lincoln a statesman. He is a detective, if you like to call him that, the master detective in the world."

When Sanford Quest entered his house an hour later he glanced into two of the rooms on the ground floor, in which telegraph and telephone operators sat at their instruments. Then, by means of a small lift, he ascended to the top story and entered a large apartment wrapped in gloom until, as he crossed the threshold, he touched the switches of the electric lights. One realized then that this was a man of taste. Quest drew up an easy chair to the wide-flung window, touching a bell as he crossed the room. In a few moments the door was opened and closed noiselessly. A young woman entered with a bundle of papers.

The criminologist glanced through the papers quickly. "No further inquiries, Laura?" She left the room almost noiselessly.

"THE TENEMENT HOUSE MYSTERY."

CHAPTER I.

"This habit of becoming late for breakfast," Lady Ashleigh remarked, as she sat down the coffee pot, "is growing upon your father. Any news, dear?"

Ella glanced up from a pile of correspondence through which she had been looking a little negligently.

"None at all, mother. My correspondence is just the usual sort of rubbish—invitations and gossip. Such a lot of invitations, by the bye."

"At your age," Lady Ashleigh declared, "that is the sort of correspondence which you should find interesting."

"You know I am not like that, mother," she protested. "My music is really the only part of life which absolutely appeals to me. Oh, why doesn't Delaney make up his mind and let father know, as he promised! . . . Here comes daddy, mum."

Lord Ashleigh loitered for a moment to raise the covers from the dishes upon a side table. Afterwards he seated himself at the table.

"I heard this morning," he said, "from your friend Delaney, Ella. He went into the matter very fully. The substance of it is that for the first year of your musical training he advises New York."

"I have not finished yet. This telegram," he went on, drawing a little slip of blue paper from his pocket, "was brought to me this morning—" He smoothed it out before him and read:

To Lord Ashleigh, Hamblin House, Dorset, England: I find a magnificent program arranged for at Metropolitan Opera house this year. Have taken box for your daughter, engaged the best professor in the world, and secured an apartment at the Leland, our most select and comfortable residential hotel. Understand your brother is still in South America, returning early spring, but will do our best to make your daughter's year of study as pleasant as possible. Advise her call on Saturday by Maurentania.

"On Saturday?" Ella almost screamed.

"I shall now," Lord Ashleigh said, "leave you to talk over and discuss this matter for the rest of the day. At dinner time tonight you can tell me your decision, or rather we will discuss it together."

CHAPTER II.

"I am to take it, I believe," Lord Ashleigh began after dinner that evening, "that you have finally decided, Ella, to embrace our friend Delaney's suggestion and to leave us Saturday?" "If you please," Ella murmured, with glowing eyes.

"You will take your own maid with you, of course," Lord Ashleigh continued. "Lenora is a good girl and I am sure she will look after you quite well, but I have decided to supplement Lenora's surveillance over your comfort by sending with you, also, a sort of courier and general attendant—whom do you think? Well, Macdougall. He has lived in New York for some years, and you will doubtless find this a great advantage, Ella."

Ella glanced over her shoulder at the two servants who were standing discreetly in the background. Her eyes rested upon the pale, expressionless face of the man who during the last few years had enjoyed her father's confidence.

For a moment a queer sense of apprehension troubled her. Was it true, she wondered, that she did not like the man? She banished the thought almost as soon as it was conceived.

"You are spoiling me, daddy," Ella sighed.

"If you think so now," he remarked, "I do not know what you will say to me presently."

He laid upon the table a very familiar morocco case, stamped with a coronet.

"Our diamonds!" Ella exclaimed. "The Ashleigh diamonds!"

The necklace lay exposed to view, the wonderful stones flashing in the subdued light.

"In New York," Lord Ashleigh continued, "it is the custom to wear jewelry in public more, even, than in this country. Allow me!"

He leaned forward. With long, capable fingers he fastened the necklace around his daughter's neck.

"It is our farewell present to you," Lord Ashleigh declared.

Ella, impelled by some curious impulse which she could not quite understand, glanced quickly around to where the manservant was standing. For once she saw something besides the perfect automaton. His eyes, instead of being fixed at the back of his master's chair, were simply riveted upon the stones. A queer little feeling of uneasiness disturbed Ella for the moment. It passed, however, as in glancing away her attention was once more attracted by the sparkle of the jewels upon her bosom.

"Our Diamonds!" She exclaimed. "The Ashleigh Diamonds!"

CHAPTER III.

The streets of New York were covered with a thin, powdery snow as the very luxurious car of Mrs. Delaney drew up outside the front of the Leland hotel, a little after midnight. Ella leaned over and kissed her hostess.

"Thank you, dear, ever so much, for your delightful dinner," she exclaimed, "and for bringing me home. As for the music, well, I can't talk about it. I am just going upstairs into my room to sit and think."

The car rolled off. Ella, a large umbrella held over her head by the doorman, stepped up the little strip of druggist which led into the softly warmed hall of the Leland. Behind her came her maid, Lenora, and Macdougall, who had been riding on the box with the chauffeur. He paused for a moment to wipe the snow from his clothes as Ella crossed the hall to the left. Lenora turned toward him. He whispered something in her ear. For a moment she shook. Then she turned away and followed her mistress upstairs.

Arrived in her apartment, Ella threw herself with a little sigh of content into a big easy-chair before the fire and gave herself up for a few moments to reverie.

A log stirred upon the fire. She leaned forward lazily to replace it and then stopped short. Exactly opposite to her was a door which opened on to a back hall. It was used only by the servants. Just as she was in the act of leaning forward Ella became conscious of a curious hallucination. "Lenora, come here at once."

The maid hurried in from the next room. Ella pointed to the door.

"Lenora, look outside. See if anyone is on that landing. I fancied that the door opened."

Lenora crossed the room and tried the handle. Then she turned towards her mistress in triumph.

"It is locked, my lady," she reported.

"Go down and ask Macdougall to come up. I am going to have this thing explained."

Something of her mistress' agitation seemed to have become communicated to Lenora.

She walked quickly to the back part of the hotel and ascended to the wing in which the servants' quarters were situated. Here she made her way along a corridor until she reached Macdougall's room. She knocked, and knocked again. There was no answer. She tried the door and found it was locked. Then she returned to the lift and descended once more to the floor upon which her mistress' apartments were situated. She opened the door of the suite without knocking and turned at once to the sitting room.

"I am sorry, my lady—" she began.

Then she stopped short. The lift boy, who had had a little trouble with his starting apparatus and had not as yet descended, heard the scream which broke from her lips, and a fireman in an adjacent corridor came running up almost at the same moment. Lenora was on her knees by her mistress' side. Ella was still lying in the easy-chair in which she had been seated, but her head was thrown back in an unnatural fashion. There was a red mark just across her throat.

Lenora shrieked, "She's fainted! And the diamonds—the diamonds have gone!"

A doctor, hurriedly summoned, had just completed a hasty examination when a police inspector, followed by a detective, entered.

"This is your affair, gentlemen, not mine," the doctor said gravely. "The young lady is dead. She has been cruelly strangled within the last five or ten minutes."

The inspector made a careful examination of the room.

"Tell me," he inquired, "is this the young lady who owned the wonderful Ashleigh diamonds?"

"They've gone!" Lenora shrieked. "They've been stolen! She was wearing them when I left the room!"

The inspector turned to the telephone.

"Mr. Marsham," he said, "I am afraid this will be a difficult affair. I am going to take the liberty of calling in an expert. That you, exchange? I want number one, New York city—Mr. Sanford Quest."

CHAPTER IV.

There seemed to be nothing at all original in the methods pursued by the great criminologist when confronted with this tableau of death and robbery. His remarks to the inspector were few and perfunctory. He asked only a few languid questions of Macdougall and Lenora, who were summoned to his presence.

Macdougall then turned to leave the room. Lenora was about to follow, but Quest signed to her to remain.

"I should like to have a little conversation with you about your mistress," he said to her pleasantly. "If you don't mind, I will ask you to accompany me in my car. I will send the man back with you."

They descended in the lift together and Quest handed the girl into his car. They drove quickly through the silent streets.

In a few minutes Lenora was installed in an easy chair in Quest's sitting-room.

"Lean back and make yourself comfortable," Quest invited, as he took a chair opposite to her. "I must just look through these papers."

The girl did as she was told. She opened her coat. The room was delightfully warm, almost overheated. A sense of rest crept over her. She was conscious that Quest had laid down the letters which he had been pretending to read. His eyes were fixed upon her. There was a queer new feeling creeping through her veins.

Quest's voice broke an unnatural silence.

"You are anxious to telephone someone," he said. "You looked at both the booths as we came through the hotel. Then you remembered, I think, that he would not be there yet. Telephone now. The telephone is at your right hand. You know the number."

She obeyed almost at once.

"Number 700, New York city."

"You will ask," Quest continued, "whether he is all right whether the jewels are safe."

There was a brief silence then the girl's voice.

"Are you there, James? . . . Yes, I am Lenora. Are you safe? Have you the jewels? . . . Where? . . . You are sure that you are safe? . . . No, nothing fresh has happened."

"You are at the hotel," Quest said softly. "You are going to him."

"I cannot sleep," she continued. "I am coming to you."

She set down the receiver. Quest leaned a little more closely over her.

"You know where the jewels are hidden," he said. "Tell me where?"

Her lips quivered. She made no answer.

"Very good," Quest concluded. "You need not tell me. Only remember this: At nine o'clock tomorrow morning you will bring those jewels to this apartment. . . . Rest quietly now. I want you to go to sleep."

She obeyed without hesitation. Quest watched, for a moment, her regular breathing. Then he touched a bell by his side. Laura entered almost at once.

INSPECTION OF ROADS FEATURE

Purdue Road School to be Held at Evansville Will Have a String Array of Talent

IS A MOVEMENT BY PURDUE

Purdue Experts as Well as Representative of U. S. Office of Public Roads Will Speak

The program for the Purdue road school to be held in the high school auditorium at Evansville April 29th and 30th has been completed. A survey of the talent to be present shows this is to be one of the strongest programs on good roads ever offered in the state.

An interesting feature of the work will be an automobile inspection trip over fifty miles of Vanderburg county roads. On this trip the road people will have an opportunity to study all types of roads, including brick, concrete, stone, gravel and dirt.

The subject "Modern Road Surfaces" by Prof. R. L. Sackett of Purdue will cover in some detail the problems that will be noted on the morning's trip. Prof. Sackett will discuss the importance and value of the various road materials under the different degrees of traffic which they are called upon to bear.

Prof. Geo. E. Martin of Purdue, who is giving all his time in assisting road people in the state, will discuss "The Maintenance of Earth and Gravel Roads." Prof. Martin has had much experience in this work and will be able to give many helpful suggestions in the use of road graders, road drags and in the proper methods of repair work.

The round table on "Road Materials" will be of especial interest. Many samples tested by the University will be exhibited and discussed. Samples brought in by the various road people will also be exhibited and compared as to their value for the different purposes for which they are intended.

On Friday morning the subject of "Dust Prevention" will be discussed by Prof. Martin. This will be of intense interest to the people since the automobile traffic is ruining our roads through the throwing off the roads the finer materials. How this can be prevented, the advisability of using oil, etc., will all be considered.

J. H. Dodge of the Office of Public Roads will take up the subject of "Sand Clay Roads." This type of road has been most successful in the south. There are conditions in southern Indiana to which it is especially adapted. Mr. Dodge has had much experience in building these roads and will give helpful information to the people of southern Indiana.

The roads in southern Indiana are similar in many respects to those in parts of Kentucky. R. C. Terrell, state commissioner of public roads of Kentucky will be present and will give a talk on the work of that state.

"The Final Cost of a Road" by Mr. Dodge and the "Maintenance of Macadam Roads" by Prof. Martin will complete the program. These subjects are of great importance and will be of value to all who attend.

The program is so arranged that plenty of time will be allowed for discussing all the subjects so that the greatest good for all who attend may be secured.

GERMANS WERE DRIVEN OUT

English Colonel Describes How His Men Rushed Enemy and Routed Them From the Town.

Note—Following is the third of stories in the Shepherd series, the second of which appeared yesterday. William G. Shepherd, United Press staff correspondent, is the only American representing an individual American press organization, now at the British front under official credentials. A fourth story by him will appear tomorrow.

BY WILLIAM G. SHEPHERD.
(U. P. Staff Correspondent.)
(Copyright 1915 by United Press.)
(Copyright in Great Britain.)

With the British Army in Northern France, April 16. (By Mail to New York.) The road to Neuve Chappelle, England's newest possession is sunken; it's the road of the trenches.

As soon as you enter trenchdom of the British army before Neuve Chappelle. You don't leave the shelter of trenches until you're in the town. And when you're in the town you don't leave it either.

Neuve Chappelle is blown to pieces. Its earth and street, even its graveyard, has been chamed by shells.

From a zigzag trench you get first view of it; it is desolation itself. The mystery is that men will fight for such a place, but the battle of Neuve Chappelle is already finding its place in history as a tremendous achievement of an English general and this group of the debris piles that you see a third of a mile distant is the rent that Neuve Chappelle, the quiet little French village that has never before been noticed by the great world, pays for its niche in the annals of human affairs.

You're plodding along the trench. "Digby MacDonald," calls the colonel who is guiding you, as he stops before a cloth that seems to be hung like wall paper on the trench wall. The cloth moves; a man's head appears behind it, tanned and smiling a moment later you're being introduced to an English colonel.

Digby MacDonald helped to make these trenches. He came here first with his men during the days when the Germans were sweeping Calaisward and when he had to order his men into a ditch beside the La-Basse road; and here's Digby MacDonald and his men in the same old spot. The months passed since last October and this little bunch of men held on, across the roads the Germans held on, too. Night and day, night and day, for thirty days, for a hundred days, they were deadlocked like this in the trenches they had made.

"Look over the trench. There's Neuve Chappelle," said Digby MacDonald.

You hesitate about raising your head.

"It's all right," he said. "The German trench is right over there between us and the village. But it's clear of Germans now and the German trenches are 400 yards beyond the town."

This is your first clear glimpse of Neuve Chappelle. You're really in its outskirts. It is only on the other side of a mile away. And across the meadow you see a man strolling towards you dressed in khaki, inspecting telephone posts, apparently. You're standing on an elevated roadway now, behind a shelter of sandbags and the meadow lies below you.

"It was from these trenches beside the roadway that our men rushed over the road onto the meadow and against that German trench in the battle," explains one of the officers. "Behind them were the reserves. They came piling over this road by thousands."

While he is talking the khaki person in the meadow is coolly strolling around and whistling. So are rifle bullets, now and then. Some are uncomfortably close; they are spent bullets and they're noisier than bullets newly sent.

All this time the German and English shells had been intertwining their pathways in the air above us. A white came near to us on our right and a hundred yards away, a shell exploded and threw up a huge cloud of earth, topped by smoke.

On our right, five minutes later, another shell fell, but further distant. Five of them came within fifteen minutes. We took to the trenches again and advanced to Neuve Chappelle. While you're in the town you can't see it. Your whole world is the wall of the trench.

Message No. 5 To the Business Men of Rushville

The prosperity of a city is in direct proportion to the local pride. Where local pride runs high, prosperity has a firm foothold. Such a town is a good place to live and do business in.

Paint helps to a remarkable degree in spreading an impression of prosperity throughout a community. It gives a fresh, new, inviting look wherever it is used. Municipal buildings, stores and homes feel its good effects. Growing business is bound to be one of the direct results of a liberal use of paint, not from any magic in the paint, but because of the pride which is stimulated.

Selling Is MORE than Trading Stock for Money!

Selling is part of the scheme of business. Most anyone can sell once, but selling so you can create permanent customers is selling successfully. That is why we carry the large stock of buggies we have on our sample floor for prospective customers or purchasers to make their selections from. They don't have to take something they don't want, as we carry every style of buggy that there is a demand for. Then after the customer has made his selection from our stock we tell him exactly what the buggy is and it has to be just as we represent it or we make it that way. The customer takes no chances. He is sure to get just what he pays for. ONE sale reduces itself to a confidence game unless the buyer is perfectly satisfied. Satisfaction sends a customer away with a smile that won't come off. That is why our buggy business has grown. We have found out how to hold customers after we get them and every satisfied customer is bound to bring a new customer sooner or later. Right now our stock of buggies is complete and if you are needing a buggy come in and make your selection. We have the style you want and we would be glad to have you for one of our satisfied customers. We know you will be glad when you give us your vehicle business, so do it now.

PASSES INTO HANDS OF THE ALLIED ARMY

Offensive Taken From Germans in France and Belgium and Lost Territory Will be Retaken.

ENEMY JUST DIGS SELF OUT

(By United Press.) London, April 28.—The offensive in France and Belgium has passed into the hands of the allies. Advances from a half-dozen points today indicated that in spite of the strength of the German line, it was wavering under repeated assaults at certain points. The weight of the Belgian-French-British combined forces in northern France is being thrown against the elbow of the German new line around St. Julian which, it is believed, Sir John French has determined must be recaptured. The Germans have not been able to do more than dig themselves into their new positions, their snipers having been unable to construct permanent entanglements. Military experts at the war office declare that it will be possible to retake all of the lost territory without great loss of life.

FRENCH CRUISER IS SUNK

Leon Gambetta, Headed for Italian Shore, Finally Goes Down.

Paris, April 28.—The big French armored cruiser Leon Gambetta, of 12,352 ton displacement, has been torpedoed and sunk, presumably by an Austrian submarine, in the Adriatic off Otranto. It is not yet known how many of the crew were drowned but the minister of the marine believes some were saved.

The French cruiser was steaming slowly when the hostile submarine launched the torpedo which struck her amidship on the starboard side. The crew was summoned on board and the disabled warship headed toward the Italian coast. When off the lighthouse of Santa Maria, the Gambetta gave a lurch to starboard and turned over and sank.

WAS AUSTRIAN SUBMARINE.

Indiana Road Preserving Company Orders Tank of Oil.

The Indiana Road Preserving Company, the firm having the contract for oiling the streets of the city, has ordered a car load of oil and expects to begin oiling the first of next week. The council decided not to start the work until the temperature was up around the seventy mark and as it has been that for several days the company was told to go ahead with the work. The street commissioner has been busy the past weeks getting the streets in shape for the oil, and everything is now ready upon the arrival of the large tank.

POLICEMAN UNWITTINGLY SPOILS ELOPEMENT

removed his coat and laid it over the edge of an ash barrel. Now this did look suspicious. The policeman stuck his head out the back door and asked the fellow his name and what he was doing. The fellow answered something and then went in to "high". The last the policeman saw of him, the youthful sunrise Romeo was beating a hasty retreat up the alley, his coat slung over one arm and his telescope bag dangling from the other.

Now for the denouement: it develops that there was a maid in a neighbor's house who has aspirations to be a Juliet, and naturally, to be thwarted, would make her very angry. It is quoted on reliable authority that she is not now on speaking terms with this particular arm of the law. How she came by the knowledge that her Romeo had been driven away is not known. Of course, there is always the possibility that the little bird might have told her.

DETAILS MURDER OF AN AMERICAN

Letter Describes Horrible Death John C. McManus Met at Hands of Zapata Soldiers in Mexico

ATTACKED BY ABOUT 400 MEN

Struck by Dumdum Bullet and His Head Blown Off—Mexicans Took Everything in Sight

Chicago, Ill., April 28.—A letter from Mrs. John C. McManus, dated at Mexico City, March 13, three days after her husband was murdered by Zapata soldiers, reached Mrs. McManus's sister-in-law, Miss Elizabeth McManus here. The envelope was marked: "Received through Department of State in diplomatic pouch."

Much of the letter is devoted to details made public in newspaper dispatches but it further says:

"We all begged John to come with us, or to move the stock closer to the city; but he scoffed at the idea, saying that he was capable of protecting himself. I am just beginning to realize the hell he lived through to do it. Because I was so worried about his safety he told me of the numerous times he was shot at and searched and how often he had to face alone the danger of present conditions in Mexico. It is hard to imagine a case of greater bravery and courage or a more wanton murder than his."

Mrs. McManus tried to warn her husband by telephone of the movement of the soldiers, but the wires were cut between the city and Mr. McManus' dairy ranch. Next word was received that the ranch was being attacked.

"I called up every one who could give assistance, beginning with the Brazilian Legation," continued the letter. "The legation immediately sent a machine with flags and a protest, but they arrived too late."

Mrs. McManus went with others to the ranch house.

"And such a sight," she wrote, "John had to be lowered from the roof, where he had gone the better to protect the place, and—oh, I can't write about it. I didn't see him; I couldn't. He had been hit in the head at close range with a dumdum bullet, and the whole top of his head was gone."

"The house was beyond description. The windows were peppered with bullets. About 400 men joined in the attack. The floors were in confusion and strewn with broken glass upset furniture, dresser drawers, clothes, books, pictures, broken eggs and dirt. They took what they wanted and threw the rest on the floor. "You probably think it strange that I do not now leave for the states but I am placed like so many other Americans. Here I can support my family with comparative ease, but to give my property away, as I would have to if I left now, and then try to make a living in the states, would be practically impossible." The letter stated that the funeral was attended by nearly every person in the foreign colony.

BUSINESS BLOCK BURNS

$40,000 Fire, Starting in Library, Rages in St. Paul, Minn., Today.

St. Paul, Minn., April 28.—One business block is in ruins, seven firemen are injured, one perhaps fatally, and damage estimated at $400,000 was done by fire today in the heart of St. Paul's business section. The block destroyed is bound by Seventh, Wabash, Eighth and St. Peter streets. Among the buildings destroyed was the great public library where the fire started shortly after nine o'clock last night.
